Business environment and the Company's performance summary

- Net sales of construction contract orders received increased significantly year-on-year as a result of strong orders for redevelopment projects and industrial facilities, especially large-scale construction projects for the current period, against the backdrop of corporations' increasing demand for capital investment.
- Amid intensifying competition for order acquisition and soaring prices of materials and equipment, our expected improvement in profits was not realized, and the gross profit margin of completed construction contracts declined. However, uncompleted construction contracts that had been secured in the previous period made progress, pushing up net sales of completed construction contracts and gross profit on completed construction contracts as well.

As a result of the above factors, both sales and profits increased.

construction contracts

• The increase in profit from general construction is attributable to considerable progress on large-scale construction projects, such as airports, medical facilities and redevelopment projects. The increase in profit from renovations is attributable to the considerable progress on large-scale construction projects, such as factories and data centers.

yen's depreciation

construction contracts

other factors

2023

• The yen's rapid depreciation that began at the end of the previous period continued in the current period, resulting in an increase in foreign currency-denominated sales of our overseas branches.

renovations

• For construction projects making progress in the current period, amid intensifying competition for order acquisition and soaring prices of materials and equipment, the expected improvement in profits was not realized, resulting in a decline in gross profit margin of completed construction contracts.
